Welcome to the Journal of Catalan Intellectual History (JOCIH), a biannual electronic and printed publication created with the twofold purpose of fostering and disseminating studies on Catalan Philosophy and Intellectual History at an international level. The Journal's Internet version is published in Catalan and English at the Open Journal System of the Institute of Catalan Studies (IEC) (<http://revistes.iec.cat/index.php/JOCIH>) and its paper version is published in English by Huygens Editorial, Barcelona.

The JOCIH is edited by four Catalan public universities – the Autonomous University of Barcelona (UAB), the University of Barcelona (UB), the University of Valencia (UV) and the University of the Balearic Islands (UIB) – and by three academic societies – the Catalan Philosophical Society, the Valencian Philosophical Society and the Mallorcan Philosophical Association. The JOCIH also draws on the support of the Institute of Catalan Studies (IEC), the Institute of Law and Technology at the Autonomous University of Barcelona (IDT-UAB) and the Ramon Llull Institute.

Contents

As its name suggests, our journal focuses mainly on philosophy. However, we also understand intellectual history, in a broader sense, to be a synonymous with cultural heritage and the JOCIH therefore regards cultural history, the history of ideas and the history of philosophy as different branches of a single tree. For this reason, we encourage authors to submit not only papers on philosophy, the humanities, the social sciences, religion, art and other related subjects examined from a historical approach, but also essays and more general reflections on cultural heritage.

As well as articles on specific topics, the JOCIH also features critical reviews of the latest publications in the field, memory documentaries and exhaustive bio-bibliographies of various eighteenth- to twenty-first-century Catalan, Valencian, Balearic and Northern Catalan authors. The journal also fosters international research on sixteenth-century Catalan intellectual history. And finally, the associated website www.catalanphilosophy.cat offers updated news on publications and academic events in the field of Catalan philosophy, difficult-to-access books, articles published in other journals and audiovisual materials.

Peer Review Policy

The JOCIH strives for academic excellence. Authors from all over the world are invited to submit their manuscripts to us through the IEC Open Journal System using either the Catalan or English version of the journal's template, which is available at the JOCIH website. Alternatively, author submissions may include versions in both languages. Publication guidelines can be found on the website but authors should bear in mind that the maximum length of submitted papers should not exceed 6,000 words. All submissions will be carefully evaluated through a double-blind review process. Successful submissions will be published in both Catalan and English, and will therefore require some additional work in language editing.
